Aunt Betsy's Present.

"Well, I must say, I think it is horribly mean of our Aunt Betsy, Estelia. After making such a favorite of you all your life, and having you with her ever since you were a mere baby, she might have sent you something worth having on your twenty-first birthday, especially as she knows how poor we are since your father's death," said my mother, sharply.

"You had better take it as a hint for the future, and not build any more castles on what Aunt Betsy is likely to do for you, remarked my sister Lena.

Walter, my brother, added with a provoking grimace,

"Here endeth my sister Stella's 'great expectations.'"

"You need not make such unpleasant remarks," I answered, pettishly. "In sending me the portrait of her old sweet-heart, poor auntie has given me her greatest treasure, and she, no doubt thinks I shall value it as much as she does."

"Well, it may come in useful, after all, for if, as I expect, you never get a sweetheart, you can imagine he was yours, when you are a sour old maid like Aunt Betsy," said Lena, who prided herself not a little on being engaged at eighteen, while I, at twenty-one, had never had an offer, not even the ghost of a lover.

I had lived with Aunt Betsy down in her quiet country home in the south of Cornwall until my father's death two years before, when comin up to London for his funeral, I found my mother left in such straightened circumstances that I felt it my duty to stay and earn what money I could to help her; thereby, however, I incurred Aunt Betsy's anger.

"Surely," she wrote, "your brother and sister can help your mother; you have no need to leave me lonely in my old age, after I have had all the trouble of you as a child," etc.

I would willingly have returned, for a close London lodging was not at all to my taste after my aunt's large, airy country house, but my mother seemed to lean on me, and so dreaded my leaving her, that I had not the heart to go.

Aunt Betsy neither came or wrote, and I had quite resigned myself to the idea that I was hopelessly on her black books when the above related event took place.

Now I knew that I was forgiven.

In her early youth, Aunt Betsy, then the beautiful Elizabeth Marston, my father's only sister, had been engaged to the son and heir of a wealthy London banker.

He had been sent abroad, on business for his father, just before they were to have been married, and through the jealous treachery of another man who madly loved her, and wished to supplant his rival, the engagement had been suddenly broken off by him.

He then remained abroad, and Aunt Betsy never heard from him again. Just before he left England he had presented her with a beautiful little minature of himself set in gold and diamonds, and this she had kept, together with her maiden name—no other lover ever induced her to change it.

As a girl, I had often seen and reverently admired the pretty souvenir, and I had taken all a girl's keen interest in the love-story attached to it. Aunt had always told me it was to be mine, and now I felt certain, with this treasure in my possession, that I had not quite lost my old place in her favor, though I heard in the same letter in which she solemly commended the portrait to my care, that she had adopted an orphan girl in my place as her companion and probably heiress.

I put the letter and portrait away with a sigh of regret for my old happy home, with its quiet and freedom from the daily toil and worry that were now my portion.

Things went on from bad to worse with us, and my twenty-second birthday found me in despair.

Walter, in despair, had gone to New Zealand; Lena had married on a very slender income, and gone to live in the North. I could not bend to ask help from Aunt Betsy, and my mother was ill, and my work so scarce that I could barely find us in the necessaries of life.

At last, I too, became ill, and we had not a penny in the house; everything we had, even poor mamma's engagement ring had gone for food.

"Stella, you must go and get some money. Mrs. Burtou says she will have the rent by to-morrow, or she shall have to turn us out into the street. There is—would you mind, dear?—your Aunt Betsy's present; you could get enough for that to keep us for a long time."

"Mamma dear, I cannot, dare not sell it! Anything of mine I would not withhold, but this—oh, don't ask me!"

"And yet the generous donor has never sent us the price of a loaf," said my mother, bitterly. "Well, take my wedding ring; it has never been off my finger since your poor, dear father put it on twenty-five years ago; but it must go no."

"No, no, mamma, you must not, shall not, take it off. I will go and take aunt's present, not to sell, but to the pawnshop; then I may, perhaps, get it back when Walter sends us some money."

With a heavy heart and weary lagging steps, I departed on my hateful errand. All our things had been sold, we had preferred to lose them to going into that last disgraceful refuge of the destitute, a London pawnbroker's.

Arrived outside I paced to and fro, until my tottering limbs, weak from illness and continual fasting, warned me that my strength would not hold out much longer.

I entered. Only one other person, a tall, dark gentleman, whose face I could not see in the semi-darkness, stood there talking to the shopman.

"I tell you, my man, the plate is here. It has been traced by a clever detective, who will join me here in a few minutes. He is only delaying because he thinks he has traced the thief, and has gone to follow up the search."

"Well, sir, I am sure you are mistaken, but my principal will be here in a few moments, you must talk to him. What can I do for you, young woman?" he asked, turning to me somewhat eagerly, evidently glad of an excuse to evade his unpleasant visitor's conversation.

Unable to speak, I drew forth my treasure. The shopkeeper looked suspiciously at me as he took it up and tested it.

"Your name and address, please," he said, sharply. "And how much do you want?"

"I want a—a little money, if you please," I faltered.

As I spoke the gentleman turned and I could feel a pair of bright, keen eyes scanning my pale face. I grew more helplessly confused, my tongue refused to utter a word.

"Tell the shopman how much you want, and your name, my good girl," he said in a kind and pitying tone.

Then, for the first time, I raised my eyes to his face, feeling that I had found a friend. Merciful Heaven! was I dreaming, or had my late troubles driven reason from my brain, and filled it with delusive fancies.

Surely there stood the original of Aunt-Betsy's portrait, but young and stalwart as he had been forty years ago, when it was taken.

In vain I tried to speak. I could only point helplessly to the portrait; the shop with its occupants and its contents swam around me, and with a cry for help, I sank fainting to the ground.

When I next awoke to consciousness, I was lying on an improvised bed on an old couch in our sitting-room at home. I moved my head, it felt weak and sore. Then I tried to lift my hands, but to my surprise I was powerless to do so. A woman, plainly dressed, with a kind motherly face, was sitting near me, and rose as I moved.

I looked around bewildered.

"Mamma!" I called feebly.

"Hush, hush, my dear miss," said the kind-looking woman, soothingly. "You must not speak; your mamma is asleep and you might wake her."

So I lay still, wondering weakly who she was and who had sent her there; but presently, seeing her stir the fire into a blaze, I forgot her caution, as all my old anxieties came back, and I said pleadingly:

"Don't poke the fire, please. It will burn out to quickly, and we have no more coals."

"Oh, now, miss, you have been dreaming. The cellar is nearly full, the coals only came in last week."

Again I essayed to answer, but was so gently, yet with such authority ordered to be quiet, that I was glad to obey, so I lay still enjoying the sensation of being not able to think. In a day or two I grew stronger, and one morning, to my delight, my mother came in, and I had leave given me to talk a little.

Then I heard all about my late adventure.

"It was really a most wonderful event, my dear, and reads like a chapter out of a three-volume novel," said my mother, who by the way, looked quite bright and strong again. "When you fell down in a faint, you let fall the envelope in which you had carried the minature, and the gentleman who was in the shop—"

"I remember him, mamma," I cried, excitedly, "he was the very image of the portrait. I fancied I must be dreaming.

"That is the strangest part of the story, but you won't let me tell it to you properly, my dear. That gentleman saw your name and address, brought you home in a cab, sent in a nurse, and everything we wanted, and has been our good angel ever since. He is Arthur Rashleigh, the only son of your Aunt Betsy's old lover, who, after mourning the supposed faithlessness of his old love, married late in life, and has not long been dead, leaving Arthur a large fortune. His astonishment at seeing you with his father's portrait, you may be sure, was very great. However, it was a very lucky thing for us; after all, Aunt Betsy's present was not such a poor one. By the way, here it is; Mr. Rashleigh was kind enough to bring it back with him."

There was one thing which did not appear to concern my mother in the least; but made my pale face flame, that was the idea of receiving all these benefits from a mere stranger, upon whom we had not the slightest claim, unless the fact that his father, forty years ago, had been my aunt's lover, could be considered one.

So I made up an eloquent speech, in which I thanked him warmly for his goodness, and delicately yet firmly conveyed the information, that I intended to repay him as soon as I could get to work again.

But carefully as I rehearsed it, that eloquent speech was never uttered, nor did I wonder at my mother's willingness to receive benefits from him. He was so lonely, he said, he had not a friend or relative in England, and a man servant, whom he had treated with kindness and confidence, had just robbed him of some valuble old family plate which his father had thought highly of, and had carried with him in all his wanderings.

For me—may I confess it without shame—the grateful interest I felt in him soon grew into love, and, ah, happy as my life has been since, can I ever forget that happy evening, when, walking home from the theatre, whither he had taken me, he told me that he loved me dearly, and asked me to be his wife?

"But I—I am poor, I am not pretty, and I am so old!" I pleaded, fearing to accept this sweet, new happiness, and mindful of Lena's depreciation of my personal appearance, age, etc.

Arthur laughed and drew my arm closer in his.

"If you are too old for marriage at twenty-two, how may I hope with six more years added on, ever to enter that blissful state?" he asked.

So I said yes, and soon after, we all went to Aunt Betsy's, and there I was married at the little village church, to the son of her lover, who loved and reverenced the queer, touchy old maid not a little for her loyal devotion to his father.

So Aunt Betsy's present saved my dear mother's life, and also saved me from the dreadful fate Lena had threatened me with. I had it made into a locket, and wear it constantly. It is generally mistaken for the portrait of my dear husband, so is the large oil painting of his father which hangs in our drawing-room, from which the miniature was copied.

We are very happy, and when my brother Walter comes home, as we expect him to do with his young bride, next Christmas, we shall have a wonderful story to tell him of the same present he and Lena thought so little of.

MOBBLE'S PLUM PUDDING.

An Army Reminiscence of the Virginia Peninsula.

How a Private's Ingenuity Secured a Much-Desired Luxury.

John Habberton author of "Helen's Babies," tells this story in the Cool:

The eve of Thanksgiving Day is usually a joyous occasion to mankind, for by that time the material for the coming feast has been bought and paid for—or charged, which amounts to the the same thing, to so many men. But in November, 1865, the eve of the great national feast day found several scores of men in a most unenviable frame of mind, and on the Virginia Peninsula. They would have dinner on Thanksgiving Day—the government would attend to that, but such a dinner. Boiled fat pork and stewed dried apples, nothing else of which the quality should be known before hand, for the detachment had no bread, not even "hard tack," and, although there was plenty of flour, the company cook's efforts to reduce it to bread had thus far resulted in heavy lumps of dough, which would have made capital round shot, had the shape been slightly modified. Perhaps the commanding officer would allow coffee served at noon, in honor of the day, if the men would consent to go without it at supper-time—this was the extreme hope of the detachment.

'Why didn't they forage?' ask some veteran. Merely, because two great armies had foraged over the ground for two years, until not a single chicken or turkey remained to tell the tale. A few natives that remained lived on hog, hominy and faith—principally the latter.

Distress led to desperation, and desperation, as it always does among a lot of Americans, led to a mass meeting, and the appointment of a committee to lead the crowd back to contentment. The members of the committee looked hopelessly at one another for a while, until one of them suggested:

'Lets go and consult Mobble.

And they went, Mobble was the one member of the company—there was always such a man to be found in a crowd who metaphorically speaking, could make bricks without straw, no matter what kind of bricks might be wanted. He always drew his own rations 'in the raw' and cooked them himself, and some odors which were wafted from his huts' chimney were more appetizing than a whole dinner at the company cook house.

Mobble listened to the committee's plaint and plea, stroked his beard meditatively a moment, and said:

'How would plum pudding meet your views?'

The committee quickly smacked its collective lips, and replied.

'How would a Delmonico dinner suit us?'

''Tis well,' said the old man, 'if the captain will give me charge of the cook house for the day.'

The committee quickly secured the captain's order—for the captain messed with the company, and the boys spent their remaining walking hours in hedging against disappointment by betting that Mobble couldn't keep his word.

But they lost their money. At noon, sharp, the bugle sounded the call, and before its final note died away every soldier was at the cook house. There they saw, laid out the board called by courtese, the cooks table, several enormous masses that looked like plum pudding, smelled like plum pudding and tasted like plum pudding. There was nothing else for dinner, but nobody asked for anything else, for every man had declined to eat more.

'How did you make it?' everybody asked.

'Easily enough,' said Mobble. For suet, I chopped a lot of fat pork and soaked it all night, for plums I chopped and candied a lot of dried apples, and the flour and the sugar was from the cook's barrels.'

'But where did you get the bags to boil the pudding in?' asked one inquisitive fellow.

'Well,' said the old man with a queer smile, 'I don't believe 'twill help your digestion to know, but I will say this, if you fellows want to chip in and pay me for a couple of pairs of new drawers that I drew from the Quarter-Master Sergeant, on my own account, I won't object.'

The above incident is respectfully commended to the attention of camping parties who live like hogs, because they have "nothing fit to cook."

Soils and Seasons Affect Quality in Grapes.

Perhaps no fruit varies more in the quality of its flavor, as affected by location and the season, than does the grape. The same variety which is rich and lucious in one place, is poor and tasteless in another. The concord is a fine grape in southern New Jersey, but inferior in the northern part of the state; it is large and rich when grown on the shady banks of the lakes of New York, but small and insipid on the clay soil at the foot of some of these lakes. On the best of soils, a marked difference is made in the character of the grape by the season. A summer rich in sunshine, and free from prolonged rains, and periods of cloudy weather, with a late and beautiful fall, will produce grapes of quality that is never seen in ordinary seasons. Even the most common varieties, attain a sweetness and a flavor, which rank them with the better kinds. In such a year, the Concord contains a double mouthful—one in the pulp, and one in the skin. The Catawba grows almost as dark as the Isabella, and the Isabella, and the Diana colors a perfect purple, and loses entirely the peculiar "catty" flavor of other seasons.

Some approach to this perfection may be made by artificial means. If a vine is trained against the southern side of a porch, and over a tin roof having reflected heat, the size and quality of the fruit will surpass that growth on the open trellis. Our native varieties, grown in a cold grapery, change their natural characteristics. The Iona loses its sharp and sprightly flavor, and becomes a mild, sweet grape, much resembling its foreign sisters. These facts will account for the varying reports that are given, year by year, of all varieties of grapes.—American Agriculturist for October.

Personalities are the bane of familiar discourse. If conversation must turn upon idle report, and talk degenerate into idle tattle, rather than submit to this drying up process of the brain let us set a seal upon their lips.

A Tramp in a Powder-House.

'They tried the gum game on me down in Pennsylvania,' said the old tramp, as he got a fresh brace on the fence for his back, 'but I came out ahead, considerably ahead.'

'How was it?'

'Well, I struck the town of York one day, and I didn't look a bit like a gentleman. My duds were old, my complexion ruined, and I was all run down at the heel. Eyer in York?'

'No.'

'Well, the people in York neither send money to the heathen in Africa nor waste sympathy on the tramps in America. I struck thirteen houses in succession and didn't get a bite, and I was looking around for scrap-iron to stay my stomach when along comes an officer and gives me the collar. He was taking me to the cooler when a wagon drives up and the chap on the front seat calls out that he will give a steady job for $1 a day.'

'What at?'

'You wait a minute. I didn't hanker for work, mind you, but I didn't care for the jug, and so, as the officer was willing, I climbed into the wagon and away went. That job was in the powder-houses which blew up the other day. The manager thought he had a big joke on me, and though I didn't like the idea of working over a volcano, I turned to and put in three days before I I quit.'

'Why did you quit?'

'Well, on the third day, as I was carrying powder to the storehouse, the manager came into the building. There was a busted keg on the floor, and I was smoking my pipe. He didn't notice this until he got past me and I had him cut off. Then I sits down by the busted keg, pulls away at my pipe, and says I:

''Mr. Manager, if we get there at the same moments you must give me a fair show.'

''W-where?' says he, his face whiter than snow.'

''At heaven gates,' I answers.'

'With that he wanted to know if I hadn't rather take $30 in cash—all the money he had with him—go west and run for office and become a great man, and I didn't know but I would. He tossed me his wallet, remarking that the train would leave in about five minutes, and I picked it up and walked off. I reckoned on being persued, but he did not even yell after me. The last I saw of him his legs were giving out at the knee, and a snow landscape was no comparison to his complexion. He may have picked up another tramp since, but I guess not—I g-u-e-s-s not.'—Detroit Free Press.

A MODEL COLLECTOR.

Tim Fagan's Eccentricities in the Collection of Desperate Accounts.

'You talk of deputy sheriffs being always on the make,' said an indignant member of that august body to a reporter, as he closed a bargain with a creditor. 'Why, we are most of the time victims—absolute victims—of the cunning and duplicity of people on the outside. There, it was only the other day that I was badly bit myself. A fellow up-town owed me an even hundred. He gave me a little palaver once or twice to stave off the collection, and I took it all. But pretty soon I saw that he was on the beat and I went for him. It wasn't any good. He was a cute file—always out when I called—never to be caught napping, and he worried me to death, not on account of the money, but I hated to be played so slick.

'Well, I made up my mind I'd make his life miserable anyhow, and I got hold of one of the fellows that loafs around here—Tim Fagan—and a sharp one he is if ever there was one. 'Tim,' says I, 'I've a hundred to collect from a man. Now, I want you to take the job. Stick to him through thick and thin. Don't let up, and I'll tell you what I'll do. If you can collect you can have half of the hundred.'

Away went Tim, and he stuck to that fellow, he did. He was there morning, noon and night. It was no use sneaking it through back yards or trying any other old blinds. Tim was up to all of them, and he made that fellow so sick he wished he'd never been born. At last he tackled Tim and says he: 'Look here you ought to be pretty sick o' this. I am. Now, tell me how much 'll you take to come off?'

Tim thought it over. He saw there was battle in the fellow still. 'Well,' says Tim, 'give me fifty and I'll let up.' The fellow made it good and Tim went away.

'He didn't show up here, though. It was only the other day I met him.'

'Hullo!' says I. 'How did you make out with that bill?'

'Och! but he's the hard ould file,' says Tim.

'But did you collect?' says I.

'Well,' says Tim, quite cool and business-like, 'I collected my half o' the hundred, but faith, I think there'll be the duce's own work collecting yours.'

A QUEER OPERATION.

How a New York Man Managed a Jack Screw in His Mouth.

A slender man of quiet and respectable appearance, sitting in a Sixth avenue elevated train, last evening, drew from his inner coat pocket a narrow steel rod about six inches in length. The rod was flat and the width of an ordinary lead-pencil. At one end there was a small slot in it. So curious an implement and the preoccupied manner of the man attracted the attention of the other passengers in the car. A lady opposite, accompanied by a little boy, glanced with alarm toward the conductor, who was intently watching the man, as the latter put the slotted end of the steel rod in his mouth. The man shut his teeth together and his face underwent a series of cortortions as he worked his hand with a motion as if he were tightening up a loose nut on a bolt. The lady became so agitated that she left her seat and took one nearer the door.

"You needn't be frightened, marm," said the conductor, "I guess that's only the circus man with the iron jaw."

"What in the world's the matter with him?" asked the lady.

"I guesss he is only tightening up his jaw, marm," replied the conductor, consolingly.

The man hed now finished the operation, and he restored the steel rod to his pocket. Then he took out a memorandum-book and made some entries in it carefully, and, having finished these entries, he remarked to his neighbor in the adjoining seat, as he closed the book:

"Science does remarkable things in these days." The neighbor nodded.

"Now, I don't suppose you would have the least idea that I had a jack screw between two of my teeth."

"A jack screw?" inquired his neighbor.

"Yes," returned the man, smiling. "I'm undergoing a dental operation. One of my teeth had been extracted, and one of those adjoining it began to grow over in the vacant space. It was a good tooth, and I didn't want it pulled, but the dentist couldn't get it back to its place, one day an idea struck him and he said he'd put a jack screw in there. So he made one. It is less than a quarter of an inch long, but it is on the same principle as the other jack-screws—just like those used in lifting up Cooper institute, only on a small scale, you see."

"Is there no danger of its slipping out?"

"Oh, not at all my dear sir. It is a very ingenious little contrivance. The whole thing is made of gold and the nut by which it is turned is next to the face; you saw me turn it just now? Well, I turn it once around every twenty-four hours, and that turn is epual to about a two hundred and fiftieth part of an inch. Then, you see, I make a memorandum of each turn. Generally I turn it twice a day, but only half-way round each time. I expect that it will take two or three weeks to straighten the tooth.

"is it uncomfortable? No not especially. A little unpleasant when I am turning it. Makes me grit my teeth some, but I soon get used to having it there. The only objection is that gold is a little too soft a metal where there is so much pressure brought to bear. You see, the screw is a very slender wire and the thread on it is very delicate, though the whole thing was a foot long and as big as those used under a building. A day or two after I began to use it the thread snapped under the strain. Then I thought there was a dynamite cartridge in my mouth and the whole top of my head was coming off. But it did not hurt me. The dentist is going to make one of platinum in case this should give out. That is a harder metal. This my station. Good night," and the man with the jack-screw between his teeth left the train.

A student who had been studying for several years in the medical department of the university of Texas endeavored to pass the examination requisite to his obtaining his diploma. One of the professors gave him a hypothetical case, and then asked him: 'What would you do in a case of that kind, if the patient got worse?' 'I would not do anything,' replied the student; 'I would just wait until next day, and see how he was coming on then. He might improve, you know. I'd give him a chance.'

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind-colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

DEMOCRATIC STATE TICKET.

FOR STATE TREASURER,
CONRAD B. DAY,
OF PHILADELPHIA.

DEMOCRATIC COUNTY TICKET.

For Jury Commissioner—JOHN ROAN.
For Coroner—Dr. H. K. HOY.

THE Day is dawning when fellows like Quay must stand out of the way for honest men like Conrad B. Day.

IRA DAVENPORT for Governor, and General Carr for Lieutenant Governor, is the ticket nominated by the Republicans of New York, on Wednesday of last week.

THE Republicans of this county nominated Daniel Hess, of Linden Hall, for Jury commissioner, and Dr. S. F. Lytle, of Philipsburg, for Coroner, at their convention on Tuesday of last week.

JOHN M. KIRKPATRICK, Judge of the Alleghany County Court, communicated his resignation to Governor Pattison last week. There are quite a number of candidates for the vacant place, which will not be filled however, until the Governor's return from Maryland.

CANDIDATE Day and Chairman Hensel had a consultation on the coming state canvass, with the principal workers of the party at Harrisburg on last Thursday. Many counties were represented and by all reports the condition of the canvass is a very hopeful one.

THE independent republican movement against Quay is taking a organized shape. A mass meeting of the opposing republicans is to be called at Philadelphia in a few days for the purpose ot starting an effective bolt. This shows that the time for political bosses, unscrupulous ringsters and wirepullers is about past, and whenever one of them lifts his head, the upright and honest voters of either party unite in crushing the offensive partisans.

DEMOCRATS, remember that if we do our full duty, to wit: Pay our taxes before next Saturday, in order to enable us to vote, and get out a full vote in November, we will be able to elect a man for state treasurer whose record is unspotted and who for honesty and strict integrity stands high in the party. That man is Conrad B. Day. Do not, for sheer neglect of doing your duty, run the risk of having a man like Matthew S. Quay in that responsible office, a man who is going to be rejected at the polls by a large majority of his own party on account of his unfitness for the office.

THE New York Democracy, assembled in State Convention last Thursday and nominated Gov. Hill for their candidate for Governor on the first ballot, the vote standing as follows: Hill, 235; Hewitt, 33; Slocum, 8; Flower, 13. The total number of votes cast was 380. From this ballot it can be infered that the democrats of the empire state are well united in their choice of a governor and that the nominee will receive the undivided support of his party.

Roweli P. Flower was unanimously nominated for Lieutenant Governor on Friday, the second day of the convention.

Since writing the above Mr. R. P. Flower has declined the nomination, and Gen. E. F. Jones, of Binghamp has been chosen in his place.

A New Hampshire law that has just gone into effect punishes with a fine of $20 the sale of a cigarette to a boy or girl under 16 years of age.

THE following item from the Phila. Times gives a bit of information about the domestic life of a well-known and prominent politician, that may be of great interest to many of our readers:

Senator Wallace has had more than the common inheritance of sorrow fall into the evening of his honored and useful life. He is a man of the strongest domestic attachments, a devoted husband and father, and his home has ever been to him the centre of attraction, even in all his conflicts of ambition.

Within a few years his estimable wife, who had fulfilled a mother's noblest duties in the care of children until they reached manhood and womanhood, bowed to mental infirmaties which not only necessarily separated her from home and loved ones, but made her a stranger to all she loved most. She is, and has been for some years an inmate of an asylum near Philadelphia, and her malady is regarded as beyond the power of medical skill.

Not far distant from the retreat of the wife and mother, is a son of Senator Wallace, hopelessly feeble in intellect from a fall received in early childhood, and another son of much promise and just in the flush of youthful manhood, was killed by an accident only a few days ago. The world little knows of the sorrow which shadow the lives of men who are known mainly in the rude conflicts of ambition; but they often retire from the strife that they seem to enjoy to sob as others sob over blighted homes.

Miscellaneous News.

Twelve hundred fairs, state and county, will be held in this country within the next ten weeks.

Ferdinand Ward pays $40 a week for the priyilege he enjoys while being confined in the Ludlow Street Jail, N. Y.

The colored soldiers of the late war, of whom there were forty regiments, will hold a reunion at Youngstown, Ohio on Sept. 30th.

Cleveland Strikers go to Work Again.

The strike of the workmen of Cleveland Rolling Mill, Ohio, was amicably settled in an open air meeting of the strikers, when the leaders advised the men to resume work at once, accepting the terms of the company. All were enthusiastic and agreed to take the work offered them. The mills started up last Monday with a large force of hands.

Murder in the Second Degree.

HUNTINGDON, Pa., Sept. 24.—10 p. m.—The great murder trial of John Laporte, son of Judge Laporte, of this county, is ended and the defendant has been found guilty of murder in the second degree. After deliberating on the evidence only three hours and fifteen minutes the jury returned with the verdict at 8.30 o'clock to-night. When the yerdict was announced by Foreman Dunkle, the prisoner manifested no concern whatever, but when his sister congratulated him she remarked, 'Why, John, how cold your hands are,' showing how well he had concealed his feelings. His counsel are disappointed at the verdict.

Curtin McClain to Hang Sept 19th.

The Governor has fixed November 19 as the day for the execution of Curtin McClain, convicted at Mifflin county of the murder of William Smearman, at Newton Hamilton Camp Meeting, in August, 1884. The mother and wife of McClain were endeavoring to secure Executive clemency, and had an affecting interview with the Governor. They claim to have after-discovered testimony which will establish McClain's innocence. The Governor held out no hope to them, but kindly told the aged mother and child-wife that they had sixty days in which to present their after-discovered evidence to the Board of Pardons. They left for home this afterncon.

Death by Dynamite.

A Terrible Accident at York Haven Opposite Collin's Station.

YORK, Pa., Sept. 25.—A terrible accident occurred at York Haven about ten miles from here this afternoon, which resulted in the death of one man and serious injury of three others. A large paper mill is being erected there, and workmen were engaged in excavating rock in preparing the foundation. A number of blasts had been made, but one of them failed to explode, and it was thought the workmen had neglected to charge. John Morrissey, of Washington, D. C., began drilling out the hole, and with his drill struck the dynamite with which it had been charged, when a terrible explosion occurred. Morrissey's right hip was crushed and the flesh was torn from his limbs. He died this evening. Thomas O'Brien was cut about the head and was badly burned with powder. Patrick Hagerty had his left eve blown out and was also severely burned, and John O'Conner was badly injured about the body. Medical assistance was sent from York and the injured men were brought here tonight.

A Crank's Letter to the President.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—A rather curious letter was received by the President the other day. It called upon him to resign by October 3. The writer signs himself "Henry N. Kerp, President-elect of the United States, Phil., Dr., M. D., Professor of Military and Civil Jurisprudence, National Military Home, Virginia." He addresses the President as "Grover Cleveland, Acting President," and says: "Your functions are no longer required. All acts made by you after October 3 will be null and void." He attatches to the letters orders from 2,262 to 2,170 to each of the Cabinet officers, addressing each as "Acting Secretary." To Secretary Bayard the writer tenders his thanks for the faithful performance of his duty, but cautions him not to "pay too much attention to these scribbling newspaper critics," and requests that the Secretary will have no direct diplomatic intercourse with any British subject, nor their Spanish or Russian allies. He calls upon General Black to resign "September 16," and closes, "Dieu et mon droit."

STRIKERS TAKE UP ARMS.

The striking iron workers formerly employed at the Laughlin mill at Martin's Ferry, Ohio, numbering between 40 and 50 men, marched up to within about 200 yards of the mill at 2 o'clock in the morning of the 26th of September, under cover of the darkness, and prepared for an assault upon the buildings and its inmates, while a squad of half a dozen bearing a large basket, in which were 30 dynamite and giant powder hand grenades, went up on the railroad to a point just west of the company's warehouse in which the workmen were asleep. The main body advanced toward the east face of the warehouse for the purpose of making a diversion in the rear. Within 20 yards of the building a mill picket challenged the mob, but the only reply was one or two scattering shots. The picket again challenged, but was fired on again, when he retreated to the corner of the warehouse. Here Major Alderson, a stockholder and director or the company, challenged the party. He likewise was fired on, when he returned the fire. The main body of the guards on the south side of the mill, had by this time advanced to Major Alderson's aid, and a brisk skirmish at once began between the opposing forces. Both sides were well armed, and the firing was rapid. While this was going on at the east side of the factory the party with the hand grenades on the west advanced and threw half a dozen into the building, when the men were driven off from a fire from within. Two of the grenades exploded, but only slight damage was done to the house and none at all to the inmates. By this time three men had fallen on the side of the strikers, and the latter began to slowly retire, taking their wounded with them.

Of the guards at the works two were seriously wounded. The excitement is very great and a renewal of the trouble on a more extended scale is very probable.

—OCTOBER is a good month for merchant to examine their stock of Dr. Kessler's Celebrated English Cough Medicine and include a winter's supply in their next order. The people have found out by experience that it can be relied on in all cases of croup, whooping-cough, colds, and lung troubles of any nature, and will have it. A good article draws trade while worthless preparations drive it away. It should be a source of satisfaction to a dealer as well, to know he is giving good honest value for money received. Money refunded to dissatisfied purchasers.

—Mr. W. H. Bartholomew, formerly one of the Spring Mills, merchants, is now a citizen of Centre Hall. By this change of residence Spring Mills loses one of its most prominent and respected business men and Centre Hall may justly congratulate itself on its gain.

—The marriage of Harry Hoy, of this place, to Miss Annie Miller, of Aaronsburg, which occurred on the 15th ult., escaped our notice last week. We understand that Rev. P. C. Weidemyer, of Brushvalley, tied the knot. A long and happy life, Harry.

FOR SALE.—S. K. Faust gives notice that he wishes to sell his valuable farming land situate in Millheim borough north of Abs. Harter's farm, and which he lately bought of David Scholl. The land is in first-class condition and purchasers will find it a good investment.

—Samuel Brumgard, a son of Newton Brumgard, of Rebersburg, died on Tuesday, Sept. 23; aged 16 years and 8 months. He had been sick for some time. The funeral, which was very largely attended, took place last Friday forenoon, when Rev. Deitzler held appropriate services.

Hay Fever Specific.

I FOUND IT a specific for Hay Fever. For ten years I have been a great sufferer from August 9th till frost. Ely's Cream Balm is the only preventive I have ever found.—Frank B. Ainsworth, of F. B. Ainsworth & Co., Publisher, Indianapolis, Ind. 36-4t

FOR BETTER OR FOR WORSE.—To-day is the day when the act recently passed by the Legislature, providing "that it shall be necessary for parties desiring to marry to first procure a license from the Clerk of the Orphans' Court," will go into effect. From now on they must "Stand up to the rack—fodder or no fodder."

—ALL ABOUT KANSAS, Its people, crops, weather, lands, schools, legislature, railroads, markets, its politics, its development, the trial of Prohibition and its future, will be found in THE WEEKLY CAPITAL AND FARMERS' Journal, an 8-page, 56-column paper, published at the capital of the State, sent six months for 50 cents, one year for $1·00. Address J. K. Hudson, Topeka, Kansas. 38-3t

—The new schedule on the railroad between Bellefonte and Lewisburg is as follows: One train to leave Lewisburg at 5 a. m., and reach Bellefonte at 10.50, a. m. Returning leaves Bellefonte at 5 : a. m. for Lewisburg and return to Bellefonte at 5 : 20 p. m. We could not wish for a handier arrangement and many people will avail themselves of this chance to take a short trip to Bellefonte and back in a day.

—A large selection of Shawls at Kauffman's.

NOTICE.—The new Process Roller Flour, manufactured by J. B. Fisher, Penn Hall, is for sale at D. S. Kauffman & Co's new store, Main street, Millheim, Pa.

Costivness is the cause of the intolerable "bad breath" of multitudes. Bitters remove the cause and prevents the evil, and cost only 25 cents.
For sale by J. Spigelmyer and D. S. Kauffman & Co.

—A clever detective ferreted out the perpetrators of that fiendish deed, the gagging, robbing and tying to the rails of Foreman Keeps near Longfellow in Mifflin county, which occurred about six weeks ago. The participants in the affair turn out to be three of a gang of section men working on that road. They are now in the Mifflin county jail awaiting trial.

—Sufferers from the effects of quinine used as a remedy for chills and fever, will appreciate Ayer's Ague Cure, a powerful tonic bitters, composed wholly of vegetable substance, without a particle of any noxious drug. Its action is peculiar, prompt, and powerful, breaking up the chill, curing the fever, and expelling the poison from the system, yet leaving no harmful or unpleasant effect upon the patient.

—The following item from last week's Sunbury Democrat may serve as a warning not to lie on your arms while sleeping:

Bennie Brubaker of this place met with a strange occurrence on Saturday night. He slept on his right arm and in the morning he had lost the entire use of his hand. Strange to say he has not recovered yet although the doctors have been at work at the case for two days.

—The schoolboard of this borough have selected the following teachers for the winter term: Geo. W. Long, of Fisher's Ferry, for the grammar school; Mr. Limbert, from Madisonburg for the primary school and Mr. Smith, of Gregg township, for the North street school. As far as we know these gentlemen are all well qualified for their functions and if they receive the hearty co-operation of parents in their labors there is no doubt but they will have successful and profitable schools.

INTERESTING TO BOTH SEXES.

—The Thirty-Second Annual Convention of the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Central Pennsylvania, began at Rebersburg last evening with an opening sermon by Rev. M. L. Dietzler, Secretary of that body. During the convention addresses will be made by the following ministers: This evening Rev. G. W. Crist will speak on Missions; to-morrow evening Rev. A. H. F. Fisher will discuss Education; Saturday, Preparatory, Rev. W. B. Glandig; Sunday forenoon, Communion, Rev. A. C. Felker; Sunday evening, Ordination, Rev. W. R. Wieand. No doubt an interesting and profitable time will be spent by the members of the synod.

—Miss Sadie Adams, living with J. T. Smith, of this place, and who was badly burned by an out-door fire, some time last spring, is still unable to leave her bed; but to-day she was carried to the train, and left for home, in Centre Co. Special arrangements were made for her comfort, and it is hoped she will reach home without any additional suffering.—Lewisburg Chronicle.

The lady, accompanied by her mother, safely arrived at Coburn on the Friday morning's train, from where they were conveyed in a spring wagon to their residence on North street. The patient bore the fatigue of the journey better than was expected. Miss Emma Adams, a younger sister of Sadie, left for Lewisburg on Saturday, to take her place in Mr. Smith's family.

TESTIMONIALS TO A PASTOR.—At a meeting of the joint council of the Rebersburg Lutheran charge, Rebersburg Pa., the pastor, Rev. Aurand having tendered his resignation, to take effect Oct. 1., 1885, it was resolved

1. That with deep regret we learn of brother Aurand's determination on account of nervous prostration to leave us and sever the ties that have bound us together as pastor and people.
2. That we hereby tender to brother Aurand our thanks for his uniform kindness and courtesy to our people, and that our prayers for his speedy restoration to his former health and general welfare shall accompany him in whatever work may be allotted to him.
3. That among whatever people he may be permitted to labor, we commend him as an efficient laborer, a zealous cooperator in the Master's cause and one whose chief delight and glory is to advance and enlarge the Kingdom of Christ.
4. That a copy of these resolutions be placed in the hands of brother Aurand and be published in the Lutheran Observer and also in two county papers.

—"My daughter has taken the medicine faithfully, according to directions and her health and spirits are now perfect. The humor is all gone from her face. I wish every mother might know what a blessing Ayer's Sarsaprilla is in such a case.

—The Convention of the Women's H. & F. Missionary Societies of this synod opened on Tuesday evening with the programme set apart for that session, Rev. Furst, of Bellefonte, offering up an earnest prayer. The words of welcome by Miss Jennie E. Bright and Rev. M. L. Deitzler were well spoken and were ably responded to by Miss Puella E. Dornblaser. Miss Nannie Britt's vocal solo fairly charmed her audience. The recitation by Miss Gun was a pointed and serious reminder of christian duty and the lady rendered the same in a very striking manner. Rev. Wm. Gotwald, D. D., made the address of the evening, having for his subject "Woman" and illustrated her advance under christian civilization. The choir, with Prof. W. T. Meyer presiding at the organ, deserve much praise for their fine executions. The church at Aaronsburg was well filled and everybody seemed to enjoy the exercises. The attendance of ladies and ministers from a distance was large and encouraging.

As we went to press before the close of the convention we are unable to give a full account of the proceedings this week. Will do so in our next issue.

—DRUGGISTS all report a rapid and steadily increasing demand for McDonald's Celebrated Worm Powder. There is no secret or trick about their popularity. It is solely because people have become convinced through trial or hearing their neighbors say that they are the best and easiest to take vermifuge ever produced. Nasty, sickening, old-fashioned wormseed syrups won't sell. People demand McDonald's Celebrated Worm powders, and won't have anything else, hence their sales are greater than all the other vermifuges combined. Money refunded to dissatisfied purchasers.

MADISONBURG.

On Tuesday evening of last week lightning struck in one of A. Ocker's lumber piles in Little Sugar Valley and nine piles were consumed before the fire could be stopped. From seventy-five to eighty thousand feet of lumber were destroyed. There was some insurance on the lumber.

William Keller is at home nursing his sore hands and face. He was poisoned by some weed while working at a stone pile on Benj. Limbert's farm.

Mr. Lee and lady, of Tusseyville, paid his brother, the doctor, at this place a short visit last Sunday.

Prof. L. Bierly will have charge of our graded school this winter. The primary school has not been supplied yet.

Jacob Eitle, of Howard, spent last week in Brush Valley with friends and acquaintances.

Most of our farmers are done cutting corn.

Apples are vere plenty around here.

J. K. Moyer, of Centre Mills, was off to Clarion county last week for horses, but returned with only one four yearling.

Daniel Long, of Rockville, is proprietor of the little farm at the upper end of town now.

Dan. Bartges and Jared Hazel expect to attend Clinton county court next week as witnesses for Drs. Huston and Smith. Boys, don't get scared now.

Spring Mills.

T. Calvin Runkle, of this place, has gone to Philadelphia to attend lectures at Jefferson Medical College. He is a bright young man and no doubt he will become a glittering star in the medical profession.

One day last week Mrs. Albright, of Millheim, met with a painful accident in this place. She was leading a cow which she had bought near this place, when all of a sudden the animal became vicious and threw the lady against a fence. The result was some bad bruises, but fortunately no bones were broken.

WOODWARD.

Mr. McHenry, the district storekeeper, makes frequent visits to Woodward. He is very entertaining—full of adventures and experiences.

Two more marriages in the near future. However, I won't give the boys away.

In the way of improvements we notice the beautiful appearance of Luther Kreamer's house since receiving its coat of paint. Mr. Kreamer leaves for the West to-morrow to be absent one month.

Howard Musser is adding a wood house and summer kitchen to his already desirable home.

Aaron Stover has moved into his pleasant new house on the Avenue.

N. W. Eby has the foundation of the cellarwall for his prospective residence on the Avenue completed.

J. C. Motz was in Ohio last week and purchased an improved cider press, which he will connect with his saw and planing mill at this place. Then we will also manufacture soft drinks in Woodward.

C. W. Hosterman leads in potatoes—both in quantity and quality.

We notice quite a number from Union county hauling cider from this neighborhood. Apples are scarce below the Narrows.

Rumor talks of a new store at Woodward, or rather one of the stores west of Woodward extending a branch to this place. Come on, gentlemen, you will get your share of the trade and besides we will give you the postoffice.

Lewisburg's Harrison-Orwig Case.

On the 10th of August, Dr. Harrison, of Lewisburg, with half a dozen workmen, proceeded to the residence of Samuel H. Orwig, of the same place, and proceeded to saw and cut off 18 inches of the building, which Mr. Harrison claimed occupied that much of his territory. Joseph Waldron, Jane Ditty and Mary Orwig turned the hose on the marauders and drove them from the premises. Dr. Harrison sued the defendants of the legal castle for assault and battery, and last week in the Union County Court a jury brought in a verdict of not guilty, and divided the costs between "the plaintiff, Dr. Harrison, and the defendant, Samuel Orwig." As Samuel Orwig was not a defendant, the entire costs go with the verdict, and Dr. Harrison must pay the bill.

QUAKER
Is the Best
TABLE SAUCE.

Thousands of articles are now manufactured that in former years had to be imported, paying high import duty as it is now being done on Lea & Perrins table sauce; the QUAKER TABLE SAUCE takes its place; it has been pronounced by competent judges just as good and even better. The QUAKER SAUCE has Slowly but surely gained great importance and is replacing the very best imported sauce on the shelf of the grocer, the tables of the restaurant and the tables of the rich and poor men, greatly prized and relished by all on account of its piquancy, aroma, taste, strength and purenoss. The inventor has by years of study of the secret virtues contained in the aromatic spices of the Indies and China, such as mace, nutmeg, cinnamon, genuine Jamaica ginger and peppers and buds of trees unknown to most men, and by long practice succeeded to combine their extracts in such a liquid form as we now find it, of agreeable taste, and so invigorating as to be taken in place of stomach bitters. By manufacturing this sauce here, heavy import duties and freights are saved, and it is sold at a lower figure to the dealer, who making a better profit on Quaker Sauce can sell it to the consumer cheaper than the very best imported article hardly equaling ours. If your grocer does not keep it, write us for prices, etc. Sold in bottles or by the gallon.

Immortality—Victor Hugo.

Victor Hugo, shortly before his death, gave expression to his sense of immortality in the ifolowing words I feel in myself the future life. I am like a forest which has been more than once cut down. The new shoots are stronger and livelier than ever. I am rising, I know toward the sky. The sunshine is on my head. The earth gives me its generous sap but heaven lights me with the reflection of unknown worlds. You say the soul is nothing but the resulatant of bodily powers. Why, then, is my soul more luminous when my bodily powers begin? Winter is on my head and eternal spring is in my heart. Then I breathe, at this hour, the lilacs, the violets and the roses as at twenty years. The nearer I approach the end the plainer I hear around me the immortal symphonies of the world which invites me. It is marvelous yet simple. It is a fairy tale, and it is history. For half a century I have been writing my thoughts in prose, history, philcsophy, drama, romance, tradition, satire, ode, song—I have tried all. But I feel that I have not said the thousandth part of what is in me. When I go down to the grave I can say, like so many others, 'I have finished my day's work,' but I can not say, 'I have finished my life. My day's work will begin the next morning. The tomb is not a blind alley; it is a thoroughfare. It closes in the twilight to open with the dawn. I improve every hour because I love the world as my fatherland. My monument is hardly above its foundation. I would be glad to see it mounting and mounting forever. The thirst for the infinite proves infinity

A Famous Runner.

Fifty years ago his renown spread all over Europe. This was Earnest Mensen. His exploits made the pedestrian feats of the present day look insignificant. He was a runner who first came into notice by running from Paris to Moscow, a distance of 1,700 miles, in thirteen days and eighteen hours. In 1836 he ran through Central Asia from Calcutta to Constantinople, bearing dispatches for the east India company. The distance is 5,615 miles, and he accomplished it in fifty-nine days, one-third of the time taken by the swiftest caravan.

A favorite employment for him was the messenger extraordinary of sovereigns. He ran from country to country bearing letters and dispatches of the highest import, and always beat mounted couriers when matched against them. He never walked, but always ran. Invariably he took the direct route to his destination, climbing mountains, swimming rivers and guiding himself through forests in a way known only to himself. His food was a small quantity of biscuit and raspberry syrup. His rests he took twice in twenty-four hours, when he usually learned against some support, covered his face with a handkerchief and slept. If he was compelled to remain quiet any length of time he complained of guiddiness and rush of blood to the head. In 1842 he was employed to discover the source of the Nile. Starting at Silesia in May, 1843, he ran to Jerusalem, thence to Cairo, and up the banks of the Nile into Egypt. Just outside the village of Lyang he was seen to stop and rest, leaning against a palm tree, his face covered as was his wont. He rested so long that some person tried to wake him. They tried in vain for he was dead.

AFTER DINNER.
Persons who suffer from Indigestion can arrest the progress of that painful malady by the use of an after-dinner pill, so composed that it will give tone to the stomach, prevent heartburn, rouse the liver to healthful action, invigorate the kidneys, and thus, through the activity of these organs, promote the natural movement of the stomach and bowels. AYER'S PILLS are so compounded that their action, though mild, effectually produces the above results. They also, in curing Constipation, remove the cause of Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Kidney Disease, Rheumatism, and many other serious ailments.
AYER'S PILLS
contain no mineral nor poisonous substance, and do not gripe unless the bowels are irritated, and even then their influence is healing. To continue their effect in constipated or chronic cases, they need only be taken in diminishing instead of increasing doses. For seamen, and inhabitants or travelers in sparsely settled countries where physicians are not at hand, they are of inestimable value. There is hardly a sickness they will not alleviate, and in most cases cure, if taken promptly. To young girls just entering upon womanhood, and to women whose period of maternity is drawing to a close, Ayer's Pills, in moderate doses, merely sufficient to ensure regular action of the bowels, will be found of Incalculable Value.

Vegetable Balsamic
ELIXIR
For the cure of
Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Asthma, Pleurisy, Hoarseness, Influenza, Spitting Blood, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the Throat, Chest, and Lungs. In all cases where this Elixir is used its efficacy is at once manifested, convincing the most incredulous that is not incurable, if properly attended to.—At its commencement it is but a slight irritation of the membrane which covers the Lungs; then an inflamation, when the cough is rather dry, local fever, and the pulse more frequent, the cheeks flushed and chills more common. This Elixir in curing the above complaints, operates so as to remove all morbid irritations and inflamation from the lungs to the surface, and finally expel them from the system. It facilitates expectoration.
CONSUMPTION
It heals the ulcerated surfaces and relieves the cough and makes the breathing easy. It supports the strength and at the same time reduces the fever. It is free from strong opiate and astringent articles, which are of so drying a nature as to be in great danger of destroying the patient; whereas this medicine never dries or stops the cough, but, by removing the cause, consequently, when the cough is cured the patient is well. Send address for pamphlet giving full directions, free.
Price 35 cts., 50 cts., and $1.00 per bottle.
